NORTH WATERFORD
Firemen's Ball a Success—Ralph Knight Gave to Texas—Hervey Kimball Spent Week End at Home—Party Attended "Rio Rita."

North Waterford may be spoken of as dead or dying by strangers, but you can't make Ralph Knight, Hervey Kimball and Wilbur Button believe it, even if they do reside in its jurisdiction. North Waterford may be classed as one of the playgrounds of Maine, for three big events take place in one calendar year, namely the World's Fair, Winter Carnival and last, the Firemen's Ball, which was held in the Grange Hall, Saturday evening, November 9. Music was furnished by the Newell Army Band, a fairly good orchestra and proved to be a howling success. People too numerous to mention from Portland, Lewiston, Augusta and other cities were present, which made a total of 100 people in the hall. The firemen's ball was his good-bye. Monday night the Outing Club of the United Parish held a farewell party in his honor and presented him with a traveling kit.

Due to ill health and advice of his doctor, Ralph B. Knight will be at El Paso, Texas, this winter. He is a great community worker and has done things up brown before leaving, putting over the firemen's ball was his good-bye. Monday night the Outing Club of the United Parish held a farewell party in his honor and presented him with a traveling kit.

WATERFORD
Thanksgiving Bell
There will be no public service in Waterford, Thanksgiving Day, but the bell of the new church will ring for the first time, Thanksgiving Day, at noon. Notice is given partly to let people know that the ringing of the bell does not mean fire, but chiefly to ask all who hear it to stop, as the Arab stops at the call of the Muezzin and for a few seconds to thank God for something they enjoy. This will be the Blessing of the Bell.

NORTHWEST NORWAY

Mrs. Lottia Adams is visiting at Merle Merrill's.

"Fly Rod"

Maine's Famous Sportsman

By Elva Dorr

"I'll be there in a minute," called a stately old lady, as she walked quickly on her crutch from across the way to the door of her home where we stood knocking. "I am so glad to see you. I don't know who you are but you've taken the trouble to come and see me and people are always welcome at my home. This was our first introduction to 'Fly Rod' as she is lovingly and sportsmanly known from Maine to California.

Miss Cornelia Thuraas Crosby of Philadelphia, Maine, gave us welcome in the old-fashioned way. "Sit down and wait a bit until I throw off my hat and coat. I've just been to market. Cold morning and you must have a cup of tea."

As "Fly Rod" took us over the little cottage explaining where all her treasures came from, she stopped and studied the women for she was far the most interesting treasure there. Her great, strong personality dominated everything. This wonderful woman may be advancing in years, her eyesight may be weakening, yet she is the same "Fly Rod" of old, who was the first woman guide, big game hunter and expert with the "fly" in the State of Maine.

It was equal to the best in her line. It would be impossible for her to really grow old. Her spirit is young and free, as she says, "I have God and my friends," therefore, she will never find old age a bondage.

Forty years ago it was an unusual and daring thing for a woman to invade man's territory, but Fly Rod held her own with honor. Guides not only aid women hunters at cyclones when they find women hunting with camera or rifle, big game from here to Africa. How times change, and how eagerly we all change with the times. In some ways its progress is an even greater curiosity than the men. But they would be very glad now to own this gold-reel inlaid with pearls that a noted New York friend presented me for my undaunted courage and skill.

The Winchester Rifle Co. gave her a rifle made for her to use in the Rangely region and Annie Oakley, the famous crack shot, admired her so much that she gave her an arrow case which Sittling Ball had given her.

When the Sportsman's Show was first held in New York "Fly Rod" was the Maine representative and was given full credit for all the hunting and trapping, Moosehead, Rangely, Grand Lakes, and she took to New York a Maine log cabin, guides, and a complete outfit. The U. S. Fish Commission, through the influence of Senator Frye and Elyson Tucker of the Maine Central R. R., placed one of its fish tank cars at her disposal to be used in transporting live fish from Maine to Madison Square Gardens, where the show was held.

It was at this show that she wore her leather hunting costume with the skirt eight inches from the floor. After this show and the one the following year, the State of Maine was opened up to sportsmen as never before and even women entered the woods unafraid of criticism.

Miss Crosby walked into the other room and called us in, here is my new and carbon, it is the last one shot legally in Maine. There used to be hundreds of them, especially around Mt. Katahdin, where they always fed. It is too bad carbon has practically run out. This one was killed at Eagle Lake, December 10, 1898.

Pitchers, everywhere, more than two hundred of them from Holland to Japan, her friends bring a pitcher to her from their wanderings. The one she loved best was made for her in Boston, yellow ochre pottery with a green band. "It is full of the love of my friends," St. Anthony's Cottage is filled with treasures—bear rugs, rifles, rods, lovely old china, rare books, up to date magazines, photographs of famous people and autographs from half the world. The writer has not seen such a collection since in Skagway, Alaska, where she spent hours in Harriet Pullen's treasure trove—collections from the old mining and gambling days.

In looking back over the years one could see how the love of Nature had brought in a dominating force in her life. In her advancing years she did not sit lonely like a day that is done. She is alert and active mentally, always thinking of doing for others in a small way; Nature lovers seldom lay up much treasure on earth.

She has great faith in the day and age and believes that every wrong will be righted, and that there will be peace on earth good will to man.

Walking with us to the car and there, under the shadow of Mt. Blue, where she has lived for seventy-five years, she bade us good-bye. "I am glad that you came to me on this golden day in October. This one perfect day we can share with our friends. Look at the clouds floating over Mt. Blue and see the masses of color or hung close to the sky. Good-bye, come again, friends are always welcome. Just let me make this little verse for you, and you can make it yours."

"This morning I do not matter that I cannot see the heron's dusky wing, nor can I hear the rustle of his water on the sand. Nor smell the busy scent of frosted ferns—I know each tree, each stone, almost each blade, and I am a departing fly on your heart return to where October waits upon the hills!"

"I have the car line started 'Fly Rod' called out, 'Be sure and give my regards to Mr. Sanborn, he is one of my friends. Tell him a cup of tea in the 100 year old cups will be ready for him any time he comes.'"

REASON FOR BEING THANKFUL
Father (to son)—When I was a little boy I used to get dry bread to eat. I was glad when I got it.

Son—Gee, you're better off since you're with us, aren't you dad?—Chicago Tribune.

The Demands of Beauty

In every calling which requires a high degree of technical skill, there is a natural temptation to forget the claims of beauty and sentiment. We try to avoid this pitfall by planning our work as carefully as we do the more practical details. The result is a service in which the demands of sentiment are satisfied without sacrificing the necessary efficiency.

Tamarack Talk

English in the Home

Language is universal. It is the one thing that every man, woman and child has to make use of daily. Yet how badly our language is spoken. Think of constantly making the same mistakes again and again in speaking. Men do not make the same mistakes twice in business.

Why should errors be repeated in language—a tool that is used so widely? Children go to school to learn, among other things, correct English. In many instances they come home to parents who do not speak coincidentally with the canons of grammar that their boys and girls are learning at school. Will the child absorb and retain for his later speech the pedagogic and often forced disciplinary language of the textbook, or the language he hears about him most of the time, the vocabulary and idiom that his father and mother use in daily conversation? Nicholas Murray Butler says: "The child will speak and write the sort of English that he hears and reads, and one can see by observation how true this really is. Listen to the language of most any boy or girl, then go into the home to talk with the parents for a while. Furthermore, children learning to read, vocabulary and the pedantic English will tend to speak a language that is a mixture of the two.

In teaching English I have always tried to make the children see that it is the talk and other boys and girls use in the conversation with parents at home that develops the final quality of speech. Because parents have the good of their children at heart, I have told students they should correct their parents, kindly and sympathetically, at every opportunity so as to draw the interest of father and mother toward speaking good English and to turn correcting the children. For, it often happens that parents have not had the chances they are striving, by constant sacrifice, to give their children to better fit them for life. Yet these same good-hearted people, in all the loving desire for the children, fail to see the importance of right speech. How can they let themselves slip into a slovenly spoken language which the young ones unavoidably imitate and carry with them wherever they go? How can the youth make a real success, hindered in progress by a lack of proper English?

It is, in great part, up to the teachers whether or not pupils improve in speech; but it is more the place of parents to guide the speaking, the reading and the writing of their own children. Not all teachers have the same ideas in regard to the teaching of English. Not every teacher will take the pains to constantly correct the speech of a pupil outside as well as in the classroom, and not all high school teachers of English keep constant check of their own English. It is a pleasant feeling when one finds an improvement in the speech of those whom he has tried to help. Young people who keep watch of their language are not bound to be disappointed later in life, for many a fine position has been lost because of poor English. I quote from an article by Arthur Livingston: "There are educated people and uneducated people, and language is the first sign that distinguishes them. An habitual slip in grammar, a wrong choice of words, a mistaken spelling, may be very serious matters in the struggle for existence. They may prevent a man's admission to a club, they may cost a stenographer her position, they may drive a minister from his pulpit or an editor from his desk."

When one goes into a home where every member of the family is trying to help the other to improve in the use of English he realizes what a beautiful thing it is to be trying to help make the English language more universally well-spoken.

He: "Are you writing a letter to Bill?"

She: "Yes."

He: "But I thought he was engaged."

She: "He was, but she has thrown him overboard so I am dropping him a line."

BETHEL

Death of Mother and Daughter

Mrs. Lilla Tasker Morgan of Bethel passed away suddenly at 7:20 o'clock Thursday afternoon, November 7.

She returned on Tuesday, at a short time after returning from Berlin, N. H., where her daughter, Mrs. Bessie Babson, was critically ill in a hospital.

Mrs. Morgan had been in feeble health the past year and the shock of the news that there was no hope for her daughter, is believed to have hastened death when she succumbed to her grief.

Fifty minutes later news was received that Mrs. Babson had died from pneumonia.

Mrs. Morgan was born at Milan, N. H., September 20, 1874, the daughter of Pessenden and Mary (Wheeler) Swan. She married Arthur E. Wheeler of Milan, and two children were born to them, Bessie and Louise. Mr. Wheeler died about twenty years ago and she moved to Bethel, later becoming the wife of Albion Morgan who survives her.

Besides her husband, she leaves a daughter, Mrs. Louise Kelley, and three sons, Mrs. Rose Harvey of Bethel, Mrs. Minnie McRoberts of Lebanon, Mrs. Elizabeth Easton of East Bridgewater, Mass., and three grandchildren.

Mrs. Morgan was a member of the Episcopal Church at Berlin, of the Rebekahs, the Relief Corps, the Pythian Sisters and the Grange, all of Bethel.

Mrs. Babson was born at Milan, N. H., January 1, 1902. She came to Bethel when small and was educated here. She married David Babson, whose tragic death occurred a little more than a year ago, when he drove his automobile into the Androscoggin river at Rumford, while attempting to board the ferry, and was drowned.

The family has lived in Berlin, but of late had been staying with Mrs. Morgan in Bethel. There are two children, Tasker and Ethel.

Each Year More Mothers Treat Colds Externally

The Dangers of "Dosing" Now Avoided by Use of Modern Vaporizing Ointment

When Vicks VapoRub was introduced, mothers especially were quick to appreciate it because it is just rubbed on and cannot upset children's delicate stomachs, as "dosing" is so apt to do. Today, the whole trend of modern medicine is away from needless "dosing."

As more and more mothers adopted this modern external treatment, the fame of Vicks spread until today it is the standby for colds—adults as well as children's—in over 60 countries.

Just rubbed on throat and chest, Vicks acts through the skin like a plaster; and, at the same time its medicated vapors, released by the heat, are inhaled directly to the inflamed air-passages, loosening the phlegm and easing the difficult breathing.

Ever-increasing demand for this better method of treating colds is shown in the familiar Vicks slogan, "Made famous when Vicks reached '17 Million Jars Used Yearly'—later raised to '21 Million'—there are now 'Over 25 Million Jars Used Yearly.'"

KEZAR FALLS

Kezar Falls Library Association held its annual bazaar November 8th, in Stanley's Hall. There were seven booths, counting in a fir tree which stood in the center of the hall floor, looking very attractive in tinsel decoration, its boughs laden with five and ten cent packages. The other booths were also pretty decorated, no two alike, but harmonizing with the season and the occasion.

The candy, dolls, and toys claimed the children's attention and for the grown-ups, the aprons, the fancy work, the novelties were well worth considering. The food table was within the precincts of the M. E. church vestry, in charge of a capable and efficient committee who served a bounteous supper to hungry people. They are worthy of many thanks. The proceeds of the bazaar and supper amounted to three hundred and twenty dollars.

Keith Stanley, who was operated upon Monday of last week, is convalescing finely.

Among the students home for Armistice Day were Helen Pratt of Bates, Margaret of Phillips of Durham, Allen and John Gardner of Phillips of Durham, N. H., says: "I was flat on my back when I started taking Tanlac. A few doses began to improve my appetite, my digestion grew better, and I was soon back on the job."

Let Tanlac do for you what it did for this sufferer. It corrects the most obstinate digestive troubles—relieves gas, pains in the stomach and bowels. It restores appetite, vigor and sound sleep.

Tanlac is made of roots, barks and herbs. The cost is less than 2 cents a dose. Get a bottle from your druggist today. Your money back if it doesn't help you.

The afternoon of November 5th, the Ladies' Circle was entertained by Mrs.

Gertrude Chapman. Twenty members were present. The social hour was spent with select readings, sweetened with candy.

The evening of November 5th the Daisy Class held its business meeting with Mrs. W. T. Norton. Fancy crackers and punch were served by the hostess.

Miss Ruth Palmer has resigned from Porter Primary School and leaves the first of December to take a position in Brainerd, Mass. Miss Arlene Watson will teach here.

Theodore, Lawrence and Harry Leggett were week end guests of Mr. and Mrs. Owen Palmer.

Stomach Troubles Headache and Dizziness

If your stomach is sick, you are sick all over. If you can't digest your food, you lose strength, get nervous and feel as tired when you get up as when you went to bed.

For 10 years Tanlac has restored to health and activity many thousands who suffered just as you do.

Mr. John Burkhardt, of 14 Mechanic St., Portsmouth, N. H., says: "I was flat on my back when I started taking Tanlac. A few doses began to improve my appetite, my digestion grew better, and I was soon back on the job."
